EXCITING NEW SEMINAR... PRESENTED BY LOCAL AUTHOR

Born and raised in Grand Rapids, Tom Rademacher has been employed part-time as a lifeguard, factory worker, silkscreener, taxicab driver, handyman and swim coach. Those hardscrabble connections to everyday men and women helped launch his career at The Grand Rapids Press as a teller of extraordinary tales about "the guy next door."

For more than three decades, he endeared himself to readers of The Press as a writer with a nose for news, a keen eye for detail, and a desire to provide a voice for people both struggling and soaring. He retired from The Press in 2009, and now freelances. He and wife Holie have three sons – Tom, Patrick and Andrew – and live in Rockford.

Tom Rademacher will be offering a seminar on Wednesday May 5, 2010 from 1:00pm-2:00pm at the Community Cabin located at 7 south Monroe Rockford, MI 49341.

Rademacher will be speaking on his book "splitting wood" and offering insight into the background behind his amazing journey and the many people who touched his life.
